OXYA EXPANDS CANADIAN FOOTPRINT TO COLOGIX'S TORONTO DATA CENTRE TO GAIN ACCESS TO ENTERPRISE & SMB ORGANIZATIONS

Denver, Colorado – August 31, 2016 – Cologix™, a network neutral interconnection and data center company, announced today that oXya, a Hitachi Group Company and leader in cloud solutions focused on enterprise and mid-sized organizations, has expanded in Cologix's data center in Toronto to augment their cloud services infrastructure. This cloud deployment, at Cologix's TOR2 Data Centre at 905 King Street West, grows their Canadian footprint and positions them for future expansion across the Cologix platform.

"We are in high growth mode as more clients are shifting portions of their IT workloads to cloud computing. We are dedicated to providing our customers with highly secure, flexible cloud hosting solutions designed for the development and delivery of business-critical applications. Part of that solution requires partnering with best-in-class data center partners," stated Melchior du Boullay, Managing Director Americas of oXya. "Cologix provides us a local Toronto data center at 905 King Street that offers redundancy and connectivity as well as access to a robust platform in strategic Canadian and U.S. markets for future expansion."

oXya specializes in comprehensive, ongoing management services for mission-critical SAP environments. With oXya's 20 years of experience the company has become a trusted advisory for mission-critical SAP infrastructure and support operations that includes a comprehensive portfolio of SAP services, required SAP certifications and compliance, and necessary SAP technical expertise to ensure successful deployments.

Cologix is the largest network neutral interconnection provider in Canada with a leading presence in Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver. "We continue to see a rapid increase in companies that see value robust network and cloud choice within their data center ecosystem and we are pleased to be at the center of trend," stated Wayne Dietrich, Chief Sales Officer, Cologix. "oXya has built an impressive portfolio and we are proud to have earned their business and look forward to supporting their future growth both in Canada and the U.S."
