

COLOGIX APPOINTS INDUSTRY VETERAN LISA GUILLAUME AS CHIEF MARKETING OFFICER

High Impact Executive to Lead Product and Marketing Strategy

DENVER, CO – May 14, 2018 – Cologix, a network neutral interconnection and data center company, announced today that Lisa Guillaume has joined the company as Chief Marketing Officer. In this role, she will lead the global product and marketing strategy for the Company.

For the past two decades, Lisa has been on the forefront of the communications and technology industries with a strong background in networking, colocation, cloud, and SaaS. Her core responsibilities will include brand and corporate communications, go-to-market strategy, product portfolio management, and sales & channel enablement.

“As we continue to focus on driving more growth and expansion throughout our business, there is not a more qualified leader than Lisa to lead product strategy and elevate our brand, and I am thrilled that she has joined our team,” stated Grant van Rooyen, Chairman & CEO of Cologix. “Her impressive track record of building high-impact products coupled with her passion for the customer experience will play a critical role in our next step of innovation and growth.”

Prior to joining Cologix, Lisa served as Chief Product Officer for Relay Network, an enterprise SaaS provider for B2C mobile communications. Lisa has also held key leadership roles in product and marketing at Digital Globe, Level 3 Communications (now Century Link), Sterling Rice Group and operated a marketing and strategy consultancy firm primarily focused on the data center and colocation provider brand transformation.

“Cologix has a uniquely compelling network and cloud connectivity story and a distinct competitive advantage in the markets we operate in,” said Guillaume. “I look forward to working with our experienced team and driving product and marketing initiatives in order to continue the support and growth of our customers as well as continuing to build the robust ecosystems within our data centers.”
